Q#1

Tell that its sculptor well those passions read
Which yet survive, stamp'd on these lifeless things,
The hand that mock'd them and the heart that fed.
And on the pedestal these words appear:
"My name is Ozymandias, King of Kings:"

Reference:

These lines have been taken from the poem
'Ozymandias' by Percy Bysshe Shelley.

Context:

In the poem Ozymandius, it teaches that man's feeling of superiority is only an illusion. One should not forget in his life that death is merciless and bring all luxuries of life to end

Explanation:

The poet, ⁱⁿ these lines, is admiring the sculptor as he has made a great sculpture. The sculpture is very realistic and has captured the expressions very accurately: ~~me~~ carved. The sculptor tried to keep the king and what he stands for: alive.

But, in this world, no life is immortal. The poet in these lines is saying that pride always have a fall, even the greatest ~~the~~ power will ultimately end. The broken statue of Ozymandius is an evidence that however great one may be in life one has to face destruction.

Q#2

(i)

A friend in need is a friend indeed.

There lived two friends who ~~were~~ ^{were} fond of travelling. One day they travelled to a forest to see its beauty. In excitement, they did not noticed that they have entered into deep forest.

They lost their way out. As they knew about wild animals so they promised that they will never leave each other ~~at~~ in time of danger. They both tried to find a way out of jungle. All of a sudden they saw a bear coming in ~~their~~ toward them. One friend said, "I will climb the tree. As you don't know how to climb a tree, you better run away. But the other friend knew, bear don't eat dead body. So he fell flat on the ground like a dead person. When bear came, he stopped breathing. The bear smell that the ~~bea~~ body was dead. So, it did not injure him & went away gently.

The friend on the tree saw everything. Bear went away. He went to his friend and asked his eagerly, "Dear friend, what ~~del~~ did the bear ~~was~~ whisper into ~~the~~ your ear?" In reply friend said.

"Bear told me that a friend in need is a friend indeed"

At this, the friend felt embarrassed and apologized for his mistake.
