

Story:- A Friend in need is a friend indeed.

Once two friends went on a journey together. They were on foot. The promises to help each other through thick and thin. One day, they happened to pass through a forest. Suddenly, they saw a bear coming towards them. The one ran and climbed up a tree. He did not care of his friend. The other was confused but thought of a trick. He lay down and ~~he~~ held his breath. He knew that the bear would not harm a dead person. The bear came there. He sniffed, took the man to be dead and went away. When the bear was out of sight, the first friend came down the tree and asked for help. The bear saying "in his ear by way of joke. The 2nd friend replied "The bear advised me not to trust false friends." Saying this, he went on his way alone.
