Question no 01

Reference :

These lines have been taken from the Poem "Ozymandias" by Percy Bysshe Shelley.

Context :

Ozymandias is an ironical poem which teaches it's reader that a man's feelings of superiority is only an illusion and deception. One must never forget that however great one is in life, death is merciless and brings all luxuries of life to an end.

Explanation :

In these lines poet admires the sculptor for making such an expressive sculpture. The sculptor made a very life-like sculpture of the king and has captured the expressions very accurately. The poet has conveyed in these lines that the sculptor tried to keep the king and what he stands for alive. But nothing in life is immortal, weather in real life or in art. These lines tell us that Pride hath a Fall, even the greatest power will ultimately end.

Story Writing:

Story:

There lived two friends who were fond of travelling. One day they travelled to a forest to see its beauty. In excitement they did not noticed that they have entered into deep forest.

"Friendship is the hardest to explain"

They lost their way out. As they knew about wild animals so, they promised that they will never leave each other in time of danger. They both tried to find a way out of Jungle. All of a sudden they saw a bear coming toward them. One friend said "I will climb the tree as you don't know how to climb a tree, you better run away."

But the other friend knew, bears don't eat dead bodies. So he fell flat on the ground like a dead person. When the bear came, he stopped breathing. The bear smelled that the body was dead, so it did not injure him and went away gently.

The friend on the tree saw everything. The bear went away. He went to his friend and asked eagerly.

"Dear friend, what did the bear whisper in your ear?"

In reply the friend said

"Bear told me that a friend in need is a friend indeed."

At this the friend felt embarrassed and apologized for his mistake.

Moral:

"A friend in need is a friend indeed."
